About company

Who we are and what we do?

The homepage builder - but for native mobile apps! We are a German software company working on our own greatest ever digital product. As part of a large publishing house, we offer a platform that allows clients to create their own mobile applications from a set of various modules. With additional services and individual customizing options, we are way cooler than just a boring app builder! Already market leader in Germany, Austria and Switzerland, we are on our way to be the number one platform to maintain the entire application lifecycle. And you can be part of our journey, rock the boat and have some fun on the way!
